Gettysburg Report, as Given Today

EDITORS NOTE — Among the hills south of Gettysburg a decisive and bloody battle was shaping 100 years ago today. Here is how it might have been reported by a correspondent at the scene.

By TOM HENSHAW
GETTYSBURG (AP)—Gen. Robert E. Lee's Confederate army scored minor gains today but the chief Union defensive lines held in heavy, bloody fighting among the hills south of Gettysburg. Maj. Gen. George G. Meade, commander of the Union Army of the Potomac, said late tonight after a staff conference that his battered forces plan to "stay and fight it out" on the same field tomorrow.

It is apparent that the action around this small (2,400 population) south central Pennsylvania town is becoming one of the major battles in the War Between the States.

Fighting today centered about Little Round Top, a hill on the left flank of the Union army, and in a salient jutting out from the federal left. The Confederates captured the salient; the Union kept the hill.

For the second day, losses were high. The Union 3rd Corps, commanded by Maj. Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, 37, a Democratic former congressman from New York, was badly damaged. Sickles was wounded. Reports said he may lose a leg.

The Confederate attack came late, about 4 p.m., thanks largely to a tactical disagreement between Lee and his chief lieutenant, Lt. Gen. James Longstreet, commanding the Confederate right wing.

Instead of attacking, Longstreet explained, he wanted to move around the Union army and fight defensively on a more advantageous field near the federal capital of Washington, only 65 miles away. The main assault fell upon the Union salient, pushed forward without Meade's permission by Gen. Sickles. Meade had directed Sickles to remain in the Union defensive line atop Cemetery Ridge. "This brought the left of the line into the low ground," explained Col. Thomas Rafferty of New York, one of Sickles' regimental commanders, "and into a position which enabled the rebels to attack us with every advantage in their favor."

Sickles was satisfied his position was untenable should he be attacked and he had every assurance that he would be, and in overwhelming numbers. At about 2 p.m., our line was advanced to the new position. We had simply advanced to the front."

Sickles' corps was overwhelmed while the rest of the Union army watched from Cemetery Ridge. Meanwhile, Longstreet saw that Little Round Top, which dominates the Union left, had been ignored by both sides. He dispatched the 15th Alabama under Col. William C. Oates to occupy it.

About the same time, Maj. Gen. Gouverneur K. Warren, Meade's chief engineer, noticed the omission. Continued on Page Two

Show Me His Pockets and I'll Tell You How Old A Man Is, Says Boyle

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—You can tell how old a man is by the content of his pockets. A birth certificate or a passport only gives his chronological age. But what he carries in his pockets is a better index to his real age—how old he feels.

If you turn his pockets inside out, you can also tell pretty well what his problems are, and the kind of hopes, fears and dreams he has. You can tell a lot about his personality.

This index gets more accurate as a man gets older. At the age of 10 months, it isn't worth a hoot—as a fellow then is still wearing those wraparound loin clothes common to both sexes.

But by the time he is 10, our little mans pockets have become a calendar of his being. They are stuffed with the trinkets and treasures of what is known as "the crowd age of childhood."

At 20 all of this wonderful baggage of boyhood is gone. His pockets now contain such items as a handkerchief with his initials on it, some cribbed notes for use in his next exam, a photo of his best girl, a little book listing the names and addresses of all the other girls who ever said hello to him, a pipe and tobacco pouch, the keys to his jalopy, 35 cents in hard cash, and a letter from his father saying if he wants more money he'll either have to earn it—or get better marks in college.

At 35 his pockets show another great change. Now they hold an address book noting his business contacts, photos of his mate and their cubs, a half-empty cigarette pack, a note from the bank saying a payment is overdue on his last loan, a plastic five-year calendar presented to him by an insurance agent, a ballpoint pen, and $1.35 in change doled out to him that morning by his wife for lunch money.

At 50 our mans pockets are stuffed as they haven't been since he was 10. But now what do we find?

We find two or three pens, a pad on which to write memos to himself, photos of his grandchildren, five credit cards, two dozen cards of business acquaintances, a letter from an old friend asking for a loan, a packet of paper hankies, enough pills, pellets and capsules to stock a drug store, a travel ad about Tahiti, three insurance company folders on how to retire early, and two well-worn $10 bills he has kept for emergencies since he was 45.

At 70 our mans pockets bulge no more. They contain a piece of string he thriftily picked up while strolling, and the wallet the boys at the office gave him when he retired at 65. The wallet holds an old good luck dollar, a faded letter from the boss saying what a good job he did for the firm for 40 years, and a card saying whom to notify in case some day he doesn't make it back home from the park bench where he sits and watches the world go by. His pockets have come full circle.

Extradition of Suspect Planned

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Arkansas authorities are expected to seek extradition of Ronald Edward Smith, 27, of Atlanta, Ga., one of three men charged in the $25,000 burglary of a Little Rock department store, when he is released from a Georgia prison Friday.

Pulaski Circuit Judge William Kirby has set Smith's trial for Nov. 7.

The other two charged in the April 15, 1962, burglary are Marion Robert Raif, 33, of Duluth, Ga., and John Oscar Luck, 32, of Dallas Ga.

Smith has been serving a sentence for burglary in Georgia. Sickles' corps was overwhelmed while the rest of the Union army watched from Cemetery Ridge. Meanwhile, Longstreet saw that Little Round Top, which dominates the Union left, had been ignored by both sides. He dispatched the 15th Alabama under Col. William C. Oates to occupy it.

About the same time, Maj. Gen. Gouverneur K. Warren, Meade's chief engineer, noticed the omission. Continued on Page Two

NAACP Asks Integration Federal Law

By ULYS H YATES
CHICAGO (AP)—The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People unanimously adopted today a resolution calling for a national civil rights legislative convention in Washington Aug. 6-8.

The emergency resolution introduced at today's second session of the organization's convention also urged a much stiffer civil rights program than that proposed by President Kennedy.

While commending the President's proposals as the best so far offered by any president, the resolution demanded these additional points to meet what it called "the minimum needs of the existing situation."

1 A Fair Employment Practices Commission with subpoena powers and the power to enforce its decrees.

2 Extend the authority of the attorney general to "initiate and file suits for the protection and enforcement of all civil rights."

3 Provide sanctions against labor unions which discriminate against Negroes.

Earlier, Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the NAACP, said Republicans face a major test in Congress on civil rights legislation.

Treasure Chest Keys Still Out

The recent Treasure Chest promotion produced by KXAR and several of the merchants of Hope was an outstanding success. Of the 50 winning keys placed in circulation 45 were tried and opened the big lock on the Treasure Chest. Each time the chest was opened the person opening it was allowed to select a sealed envelope containing a merchandise certificate from one of the sponsors.

There are 5 winning keys still in circulation, not tried in the lock. For each winning key still in circulation there is a gift certificate in the treasure chest. KXAR will place the Treasure Chest in the building formerly occupied by the Corner Store this Friday, July 5, between the hours of 9 to 12 and 2 to 5 in order to let you try any key which you have that you did not get to try during the Treasure Chest promotion.

If you unlock the chest, you will receive one of the remaining merchandise certificates. In addition to these certificates KXAR is offering several other gifts to those trying their key. There'll be cigarette lighters, Lindy Bull point pens, and several popular albums given to the lucky persons trying their keys, whether they hold a key which unlocks the treasure chest or not. If you hold keys to the treasure chest be sure you go by the building formerly occupied by the Corner Store, Friday, July 5, and try your luck. You may be a winner.

Washington July 4 Prize Is Shetland

An attraction of equal interest to children and grown-ups at Pioneer Washington's Fourth of July Celebration is "Firecracker," a pretty little palomino colored Shetland pony to be given away at 4 p.m. that day.

She has been donated to the Foundation by County Judge Orie Byers and Ray Turner of the Trading Post, and is now on display on the Tavern lawn. Tickets, giving the purchaser a chance to win the pony, are on sale in the Taproom of the Tavern and will be until time for the drawing.

According to Mrs. Charles A. Haynes, there will be plenty of boxed lunches for all comers. Y. C. Coleman of Hope will head a committee to barbecue the chickens on the Tavern lawn during the early morning hours of the Fourth.

Stone-Ground corn meal made in the Blacksmith Shop's 93 year old grist mill will be on sale at the Sope. The mill was given to the Foundation by the Goodlett family of Ozark three years ago. Its stone grinder was imported from France.

Among the wealth of pioneer relics to be seen at the Blacksmith Shop, of special interest to visitors will be a real cowboy saddle and a handmade hunting knife of unknown age and manufacture.

The saddle was prevented to the Foundation by Dave Coulter of Ozden, Ark., a man now in his 90's. He used it on trail rides from Indian territory to Montana, and while serving as an early-day Texas Ranger. Attached to the saddle as souvenirs are his Ranger's badge, and two memorabilia of the battleground where General Custer made his last stand. They are an American half dollar and a brass ornament from an Indian saddle both of which were picked up by Mr. Coulter 12 years after the battle.

Second Session of Swim Course

China-Russia Split Seems Certain Now

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP)—A shattering Russian-Red Chinese split, something the most cunning Western statesmen could not have engineered, seems certain now, perhaps this week.

If this doesn't drive Russia closer to the West, at least it will force her to divert more of her thinking and resources to coping with Red China in Asia and elsewhere.

This will be the best break for the allies since the cold war began. But it doesn't mean world peace is any closer or that the Atlantic partners will have sense enough to make the most of the crack in the enemy camp.

On the contrary, they may start cutting capers of their own until they, too, make a mess of themselves.

They stood together solidly enough when they felt intense pressure and danger from Russia. When Premier Khrushchev seemed to relax, they began to relax and to assert their ancient nationalism, which was exactly the basic cause of the Russian-Chinese split.

French President de Gaulle buffeted both the United States and Britain in what seems to be his dream of a French grandeur which belonged in another century. It is his way of trying to establish new French leadership in Europe.

He barred Britain from the European Common Market, challenged Americas loyalty to its allies if they were attacked, and, using this for an excuse, is making his own nuclear weapons over American protests.

This is probably only the beginning of the allies problems with one another. But if all these problems melted tomorrow, the Russian-Red Chinese split still wouldn't bring world peace closer.

Last week Secretary General U. Thant of the United Nations guessed the Chinese Communists would explode their first atomic bomb this year or next. They have been working on it for years with little or no help from Russia.

Professor Irate Over U.S. Critics

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Dr. Bob Riley, professor of government at Ouachita Baptist College in Arkadelphia, said in Little Rock Monday that the power of state and local government affects citizens 10 times more than federal power.

He said he was sick and tired of reading about the tyranny of the federal government.

Riley was moderator for a panel discussion on the functions of the government as a resource in the economy. It was part of a three-day Economic Education Workshop at the University of Arkansas Medical Center.

Germans Look to U.S. Tie for Security

EDITORS NOTE — John M. Hightower, Pulitzer Prize-winning AP diplomatic reporter in Washington who accompanied the press party with President Kennedy, was granted an exclusive interview with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany. Here is his story.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
BONN, Germany (AP)—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer of West Germany, speaking between meetings with President Kennedy and President Charles de Gaulle of France, said Tuesday European unity "must develop in close partnership with the United States."

At the same time, he defended the new friendship treaty between France and Germany, saying reconciliation of the traditional enemies "is the prerequisite for any form of European cooperation."

Adenauer expressed these and other views in an exclusive interview with The Associated Press. He also surveyed briefly his 14 critical years as Chancellor of West Germany and summarized the accomplishment which obviously has given him the most satisfaction.

"A backward look at the past period of German political life in my opinion, Adenauer said, "shows the greatest achievement in the time that lies behind us to have been the re-integration of the Federal Republic into the community of free nations."

At 87, Adenauer is preparing to retire, and turn over the government to Deputy Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, 66.

But Adenauer does not look forward to idle days at his home across the Rhine, in Rhodendorf, or his vacation retreat on Lake Como in Italy. He plans to write his memoirs, and he is ready to travel for his country if the new administration wants him to do so.

The interview took place in the Palais Schaumburg, where a week ago Adenauer conferred on Atlantic policy problems with President Kennedy. There he will receive De Gaulle Thursday for the first round of talks prescribed under the new French-German pact, which calls for regular consultation between Bonn and Paris.

The interview was based on written questions submitted in advance. Written answers were authorized for quotation. The informal exchanges in which he amplified his views were off the record.

The talk covered relations between the Western powers and the Soviet Union, Adenauer's conferences with Kennedy, his forthcoming meeting with De Gaulle, and his own plans. Expanding on the written replies, his comments left no doubt that he is a friend and admirer of De Gaulle and that he was well pleased with his talks with Kennedy.

If his reactions appear contradictory, it can be said that he does not see them that way. Adenauer is convinced, as Kennedy also has said publicly, that De Gaulle is committed to the essentials of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and that no discussions over policy will break the basic commitment.

Here are questions and answers spelling out Adenauer's views:

Q. Since you and President de Gaulle signed a treaty early this year setting up a special relationship between Germany and France there has been some apprehension in the United States and other Western countries that this relationship might develop contrary to the wider interests of the Atlantic Alliance. What is the purpose of the treaty?

A. If you are to be able to evaluate the German-French treaty rightly, you must see what preceded it in the way of conflicts between France and Germany over the course of centuries. You must see, in addition, that France and Germany are threatened to the same degree by the Soviet Union.

The treaty ends a conflict that has lasted for centuries. It is the purpose of the treaty to ensure that France and Germany are able to evaluate the German-French treaty rightly, you must see what preceded it in the way of conflicts between France and Germany over the course of centuries. You must see, in addition, that France and Germany are threatened to the same degree by the Soviet Union.

Pope Greets JFK, Moment in History

By EUGENE LEVIN
VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI received President Kennedy in a historic audience today and extended his blessing to all Americans. He said he would pray for the President's efforts to end racial discrimination.

The pontiff, after conferring privately for 40 minutes with the first Roman Catholic American president, told his guest:

"We are ever mindful in our prayers of the efforts to ensure to all your citizens the equal benefits of citizenship, which have as their foundation the equality of all men because of their dignity as persons and children of God."

The Pope then turned to space exploration and other topics. He said:

"These past few years have seen impressive developments in the exploration of space to which the United States has made notable contributions. May these undertakings take on a meaning of homage rendered to God, creator and supreme lawmaker. Because they augur so much for the benefit of mankind, may they be indicative of true and peaceful progress which would bring men together in a closer relationship of universal brotherhood."

"This is what we hear often in the discourse of your excellency, how the candor your words recall the higher moral principles of truth, of justice and of liberty. We find a spontaneous harmony with that which our venerable predecessor, Pope John XXIII (wrote) in his last encyclical letter, 'Pacem in Terris,' when he presented anew to the world the Church's constant teaching on the dignity of the individual human person, a dignity which the Almighty Creator bestowed in creating man to his own image and likeness."

It was at this point that the pontiff spoke of Kennedy's efforts to end discrimination. Then, turning to the subject of peace, he said:

"Universal peace in charity and justice can be achieved, and we feel that the efforts of the United States will bear fruit and help to secure for all peoples of this troubled world that peace which will enable them to prosper and to enjoy the blessings which God intends for them. To this end, following the example of our predecessors, we, too, are dedicating our prayers, our energies, and our life."

"We extend to you a heartfelt welcome, and through your excellency we wish to send our greetings to Mrs. Kennedy, to your family and to all the citizens of your country, invoking upon them the abundant blessings of God."

Pope Paul read his speech in English after the private audience and after Kennedy presented members of his party, including Secretary of State Dean Rusk and the President's sister, Mrs. Jean Smith.

The Pope read from an armchair, not a throne, sitting at the same level as Kennedy alongside in another armchair.

The Pope recalled meeting the President when Kennedy came with his father to the coronation of Pope Pius XII in 1939. Pope Paul also recalled he had visited the United States twice and commented:

"We were able to experience personally the many admirable qualities which have made yours a leading member of the family of nations. The warm and sincere hospitality which was extended to us wherever we went left upon us a lasting impression."

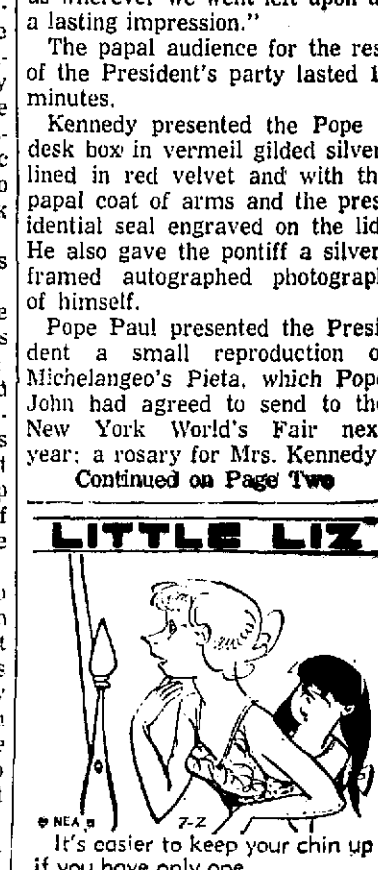

The papal audience for the rest of the President's party lasted 10 minutes.

Kennedy presented the Pope a desk box in vermeil gilded silver, lined in red velvet and with the papal coat of arms and the presidential seal engraved on the lid. He also gave the pontiff a silver-framed autographed photograph of himself.

Pope Paul presented the President a small reproduction of Michelangelo's Pieta, which Pope John had agreed to send to the New York World's Fair next year: a rosary for Mrs. Kennedy.

PEG PANTS VERSUS PARENTS

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I am a girl going on 14. Everybody at my school wears pegged pants and are they tight! I own a few pairs but my parents go into a tizzy whenever I put them on.

Papa wouldn't speak to me when I passed him on the street the other day in my best blue peg pants. Later he told Mama he was ashamed to. She said I had better be wearing a barrel and hustled me off next morning to buy me summer dresses.

I wore one of the dresses today and all the other girls laughed at me. How can I convince Mama and Papa that their thinking is out dated?—C

Dear C.: The longest bridge in the world is the bridge between parents and adolescent children. Sometimes it seems so long we give up crossing it at all. Other times the bridge seems to have vanished leaving us marooned on one shore, our children on the other.

Before trying to convince your parents that peg pants are high fashion, you'll have to bridge the gulf between you. Laugh with them, talk with them, take them into your confidence. See them as people, not monsters. Once this is accomplished, introduce the controversial subject of peg pants at the dinner table when everybody is more or less relaxed. But be sure your argument is valid before opening the debate.

To want to wear peg pants only because the other girls wear them is weak reasoning. Have you the figure for them? Do they become you? Don't be an assembly-line product conforming because others conform.

Provocative dressing attracts just what you expect: the erotic attention of the boys. If you display physical lures, you're going to arouse sexual interest and reap physical advances. If this is what you want, think about it a little more. You can be sure that your parents understand this and that's why their thinking is not dated, but rooted in experience of life. They don't want you to be hurt because of your immaturity (and pretty natural) impulse to wow every boy in town.

Take stock of yourself. What other attractions have you besides hips and the other fairly common features of the female? Remember, if you get into a competition of hips, bust and leg, you'll always find somebody who can out-do you.

But there's one thing you, and only you, have. That your individuality—your personality. You can wear a burlap bag and still be charming if you develop that unique thing known as charm. I've known girls and women with bean-pole figures who could charm men (and women) out of their shoes. Remember, all your sisters have sex. What else have you, individually, that can't be shown in tight pants?

Dear Helen: My brother was engaged to my best friend when he met another girl whom he loved better. Inevitably his fiancée heard about it, returned his ring, pictures and letters and said, "This is it!"

Though devoted to her, I hesitated to continue our friendship for my brother subsequently married the other girl. Last night I met my old friend at a party and, when she acted coolly, felt on the verge of crying. What can I do to make her trust me again?—Upset

Dear Upset: Though not entirely parallel, a similar family problem confronts the Rockefeller clan. The Laurence Rockefellers have backed up the Governor and his bride, while two of the other brothers, John D. Jr. and David and their wives, are standing by the first Mrs. Rockefeller. Winthrop, the fifth brother, apparently remains neutral. I think the Laurence Rockefellers are right. Your allegiance should be to your brother and his new wife. To receive a friendship with the ex-fiancee is not only courting trouble but being disloyal to them.

Dear Helen: My husbands people love our little girl to the exclusion of our little boy. He's an adorable child but very sensitive and feels left out in the cold when she gets all the attention.

Personally, I think him more appealing than Sister who, being the first child, is somewhat spoiled. My parents, on the other hand, are equally fond of both youngsters. Should I leave our son with them and take only Sister when we go to visit my in-laws?—Perturbed

Dear Perturbed: To leave your small son with your parents while you and your little daughter visit the in-laws will only stir up more trouble. Its your husbands duty, as a blood relation, to have a heart-to-heart talk with his father and mother about the matter. explaining this favoritism as easily mushroom up into a serious problem as the years go on. Meanwhile, make sure that you and he lavish the same amount of love and attention upon each child.

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

8 Pro Grid Rockies Look Good Today

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The first test of the pro football rookies of 1963 points to eight as good bets to make the grade.

They are Hugh Campbell and Kermit Alexander of the San Francisco 49ers, Lee Roy Jordan of the Dallas Cowboys, George Saines and Darlye Lamonica of the Buffalo Bills, John Mackey of the Baltimore Colts, Pat Richter of the Washington Redskins and Bill Nelson of the Pittsburgh Steelers as good bets to make the grade.

On the basis of their showing in Saturday nights All-America game won by the West 22-21 over the favored East, Lynn Griffing of the New York Giants, Thunder Thornton of the St. Louis Cardinals, Larry Ferguson of the Detroit Lions, Dave Robinson of the Green Bay Packers and Ray Mansfield, Ronnie Goodwin and Nate Ramsey of the Philadelphia Eagles also appear to have plenty on the ball.

The list is long because the game was remarkably well played considering the 81-degree heat in the steam bath that was War Memorial Stadium.

A crowd of 20,850 turned out for the contest, co-sponsored by the American Football Coaches Association and the Buffalo Evening News.

Hugh Campbell, the Washington State whiz who led the nation in pass receptions for three years, was voted the most valuable player for catching eight passes for 108 yards and two touchdowns. His last TD catch in the final period, plus Mansfield's conversion, won the game for John Mackey of Southern California, the 1962 college Coach of the Year.

Nelson threw two touchdown passes, completing 11 of 27 for 162 yards.

Jordan, Alabama's fast linebacker, shored up the East line and should make the Dallas club a fine defensive star. He was the best tackle in the game.

The Buffalo fans were thrilled by the work of Saines, the Michigan State fullback, who topped them all with 86 yards in 16 carries. He suffered a rib injury late in the game.

Lamonica, the 1962 Notre Dame quarterback, was held out at the start due to injuries, but opened up with the pro-type long bombs when he got a chance to throw. He hit Willie Richardson, a future Baltimore Colt from Jackson, Miss. State, with a beautiful 28-yard TD pass.

an autographed photograph of himself, and small medals on gold chains for the President's children.

When the audience was over, the Pope and the President shook hands.

The 35th President of the United States and the 262nd pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church met on the threshold of the papal library at 10:11 a.m.—4:11 a.m. EST. Kennedy had been two minutes late arriving at the Vatican.

After the 65-year-old pontiff greeted the 46-year-old President, the two men immediately entered the library for a private talk.

A crowd described by the Italian state television network as "discreet" watched behind barriers as the President's open black car drove across St. Peter's Square and into the St. Damasus courtyard under a warm sun. Secretary Rusk rode with the President.

Palatine Guards in 19th century uniforms snapped to attention, trumpets blared.

Kennedy and Rusk got out of the car, and the band of the Palatine Guard played "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Vatican ceremonial and protocol attendants greeted Kennedy, and escorted him to an elevator.

Archbishop Gennaro Verolino, secretary of the Vatican's Ceremonial Congregation, welcomed the President.

On second floor, the presidential party was escorted by papal ushers, footmen and Swiss Guards through twisting corridors lined with Swiss Guards.

In the apostolic palace's small throne room Amleto Cardinal Cicognani, Vatican secretary of state, greeted the President and then the President was escorted alone to the papal apartment.

The Pope's private chat with Kennedy lasted for 40 minutes, 13 minutes longer than President Eisenhower's private audience with Pope John XXIII on Dec. 6, 1959.

President Kennedy, first Catholic president of the United States, is the third U.S. chief executive to visit a Pope while in office. Woodrow Wilson had an audience with Pope Benedict XV in 1919.

Cotton Services Open to County

Hempstead County cotton farmers are now eligible for cotton classification and market news services for the 1963 season, according to E. R. McInnes, officer in charge of the cotton division's classing office, Agricultural Marketing Service, Little Rock.

The county-wide group application for these services was submitted by Calvin J. Caldwell, Hempstead county agent, and was approved June 28.

L. J. Hampton of Hope will serve as representative of the Hempstead county cotton improvement group. Fred Glanton, also of Hope, will serve as president of the group, and Moss Rowe of Washington, Arkansas, is the alternate representative.

The free classification and market news services are provided for farmers under the Smith-Dooley Act of 1937. Farmers in Hempstead county had 2,351 samples classed under this program last year.

There would still be the Red Chinese to think about.

Would they agree not to test, just because the United States and Russia had agreed not to? Hardly.

Would the United States and Russia, if they could reach agreement, keep it if they saw the Red Chinese testing? It isn't likely.

sion from the federal side. "I rode down the hill," he said, "and fortunately met my old brigade. I took the responsibility to detach the first regiment. I struck, whose colonel, on hearing my few words of explanation about the position, moved at once to the hilltop."

The Union regiment, the 20th Maine under Col. Joshua L. Chamberlain, reached the top of the hill about 10 minutes before the Confederates. The Alabamans charged. The Maine line bent, then countercharged.

"We struck the rebels with a fearful shock," said Theodore Gersish of the 20th Maine. "They recoiled, staggered, broke and ran, and like avenging demons our men pursued."

"The rebels rushed toward a stone wall but, to their surprise and ours, two scores of rifle barrels gleamed over the rocks, and a murderous volley was poured in upon them at close quarters."

"This unlooked-for reinforcement were our skirmishers, who we supposed had all been captured."

About 6 p.m., on the opposite end of the Union line, an attack by the Confederate corps of Lt. Gen. Richard S. Ewell was hurled back from Cemetery Hill and peace descended on the battlefield.

Differences between the two Communist giants, growing worse by the year, recently became so bad that the meeting they arranged for next Friday in Moscow to discuss them may wind up in an explosion.

Meanwhile, the United States and Britain had arranged to meet in the same place with the Russian July 15 to discuss a nuclear test ban. Theres not much optimism about the outcome of that, either.

A triple dubiety — with the United States, Russia and Red China all distrusting one another — is hardly a happy foundation for a test ban agreement between the United States and Russia, even if one could be reached.

There would still be the Red Chinese to think about.

Would they agree not to test, just because the United States and Russia had agreed not to? Hardly.

Would the United States and Russia, if they could reach agreement, keep it if they saw the Red Chinese testing? It isn't likely.

The Red Chinese complaint that the Russians aren't aggressive enough is probably a thin excuse for deeper discontents: their rival nationalisms, their eventual conflict over living space in Asia, and Russias skimpy help to the Red Chinese before and after they took power.

All in all, the Russian-Red Chinese split could be a turning point in history for the West, something to cheer about, but the Western partners will probably find ways to offset this by causing themselves trouble if the Communists don't.

Rep. Talbot Field's record in the Legislature has been very vague to a majority of the voters in our County. It will be a wise thing if he will speak out as soon as possible or write an article on how he feels about the present State Administration and the General Assembly of 1963.

In the next campaign, his record in the Legislature will be publicized to include his voting record, his activities, his letters to his constituents carrying related issues on different pieces of legislation. So it will give forth a full measure on his stand and his record so that the people will know him better.

Eclipse of Sun Is Due on July 20

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A partial eclipse of the sun will be visible in Arkansas July 20 for about 1 hour and 40 minutes.

Astronomers said it would begin about 1 p.m., with about one-sixth of the sun's surface covered to Arkansas viewers, though a total eclipse will be visible in other parts of the hemisphere.

Dr. William L. Bunch Jr., director of the Division of Communicable Disease Control of the state Health Department, urged persons who view the eclipse not to look directly at the sun.

Hesaid they should use smoked mirrors, or "better yet watch the event on television" to avoid irreparable burns to the retina of the eyes.

By "BILL"

Some long time ago, we read an interesting article entitled "Listen to the Drums." We quote: "Each man's drummer is invisible, but his music is strong and compelling. Some march to the rhythm of an obsession, others to the steady banging of ambition, while still others hear only the monotonous routine."

Quite often we get the feeling that people who do not think exactly as we do are eccentric and should be repressed. In our country we have a democracy which is supposed to be non-interfering. As long as people are not doing any positive harm, they should be allowed to follow their own music, even if they aren't doing any particular good. It isn't the hermit who takes to the hills and lives alone who is selfish; the self-centered one is the person who expects everyone to listen to his OWN music.

It might be well for us all to give this matter some thought during the 4th of July holidays. Re-read the Constitution and allow every man to step to the music he hears.

Now, at Raley's Style Shoppe we hear only the tom-tom of one drum, and that is... sell, sell, sell! Night and day, day and night, there is a yearning, burning desire to sell every summer dress in stock. We sure hope no one tries to repress us!

We are having a SPECIAL PRE-VENTORY SALE. All summer dresses and suits are reduced. You will like what you see, washable cottons, dressy sheers for weddings and teas, dancing dresses, sportswear for vacation wear, sizes and prices for everyone.

Join the parade of women and march to the sale; the low prices will be sweet music to your ears. Remember the place; it is Raley's Style Shoppe, Hope's House of Fashion.

Virginia's Segregation Laws Voided

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Two federal courts in three opinions hit racial segregation laws in Virginia today.

A special three-judge court said the states segregated seating laws are unconstitutional and void.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals barred Powhatan County, Va., school officials from closing public schools to avoid integration.

The same court in another opinion knocked down two key provisions of a school desegregation plan for Lynchburg, Va.

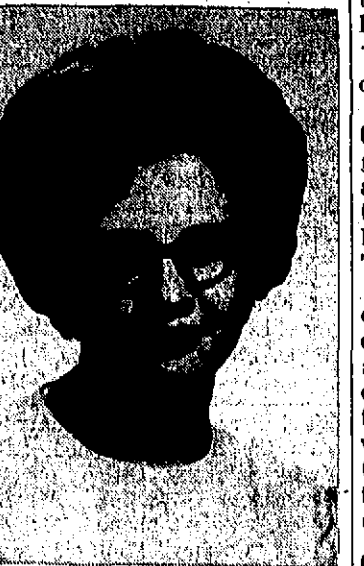

In the Powhatan case, the appeals court upheld most of an injunction issued earlier by U.S. District Court Judge John D. Butzner Jr. of Richmond. Butzner enjoined all county officials from taking any action to close schools but the appeals court exempted the County Board of Supervisors and made the order applicable to school officials only.

There have been unconfirmed reports Powhatan officials were

Here's Why Your Gas Bill Looks Different Lately...

Arkla Gas Bill

Arkansas Louisiana Gas Company now has nearly one half million gas customers in five states. To handle more efficiently the billing for these customers, Arkla is putting into operation this year an electronic data processing center to compute your bill.

The maze of wire, tapes and computers which make up the center is as modern as today's jet age but even so it is a little too much to expect the center to handle all 500,000 bills in one day.

This is the reason we had to balance the center's overall operation by adjusting some billing dates throughout our system, including those in Hope. This means that the initial bills processed under the new system may cover a period longer than the normal month while others may cover less than a month. That's why the July bills may be a little higher or lower than normal.

With the time saved by the electronic system, bills can be processed and mailed to customers much nearer the actual meter reading dates. This is another reason why some Hope customers will get their bills a little earlier than normal.

Now that the new schedule has been fixed in the data processing center, Hope customers are assured that their future gas bills will fall due at a regular time.

Arkla regrets any inconvenience caused by the new Hope billing dates and appreciates your patience during this period of adjustment. The new system will result in a stable billing date, the virtual elimination of errors in calculations and improved service.

We ask that you bear with us through this changeover. Thank you.

Germans Look

has stretched over 400 years. It is that fact which gives the treaty its place in history. Since the beginning of our political activity in the Federal Republic, it has been our intention to establish a lasting friendship between Germany and France, and to prevent situations in which the two countries once more could be layed off against one another. Both nations today present a firm bulwark against the threat to Europe from the East. This friendship, too, is the prerequisite for any form of European cooperation. German-French friendship is the guarantee of peace in Europe. That is a factor of great significance to the United States. For, as President Kennedy said here in Bonn, the United States was involved in both world wars because Germany and France faced each other as foes. I am absolutely convinced that this treaty will work out not only to the benefit of both peoples, but also to the benefit of all Europe, and of the peace of the world. So far as the content of the treaty is concerned, in a certain sense it constitutes a model of the content of a treaty which could introduce the first phase of a political community of Europeans.

Q. Mr. Chancellor, you have guided German destinies through a remarkable recovery from the disastrous heritage of Nazism and war into a new historical era. What accomplishment do you consider most significant, most fundamentally important, during this decisive period?

A. A backward look at the past period of German political life in my opinion shows the greatest achievement in the time that lies behind is to have been the reintegration of the Federal Republic into the community of free nations.

The German people feel gratitude and friendship toward their allies and have made this feeling highly tangible. Q. For several years U.S. leaders have been concerned about the dangers of a nuclear arms race among the Allies, fearing that if France developed a nuclear force a demand for such a force would arise also in Germany and perhaps in other NATO nations. Do you regard this as a serious problem? Do you feel that a multilateral arrangement, providing for joint ownership and control of nuclear weapons, affords a permanent alternative to national forces?

A. The Federal Republic seeks no national control over atomic weapons. Our government has welcomed the project for a multilateral naval force armed with medium-range rockets. Within the realm of our capabilities we are ready to take part in this international project. I do not believe that other NATO nations will follow the example of France. Q. Another issue which troubles Allied relations is that of trade between the European Common Market countries and countries like the United States and Britain which are outside the market. Does Germany's long-range interest lie in lowering tariffs, or does it lie in a protective system of duties and quotas?

A. The Federal Republic, within the framework of the European Economic Community, all along has supported a lowering of the

Travelers Take Two at Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Cal Emery bashed three home runs to lead the Arkansas Travelers to 8-4 and 5-2 International League baseball victories over Buffalo's Bisons in Buffalo Monday.

Altogether, the Travelers clouted six homers in the doubleheader. In other International League games, Syracuse beat Rochester 6-3 in 10 innings, Indianapolis beat Atlanta 4-2, Jacksonville edged Columbus 6-5 and Richmond split with Toronto, winning 6-3 and then losing 1-0.

Emery blasted two homers in the first game and added one more in the nightcap. John Herrstein and Norm Gigon also socked homers in the first game, and Danny Cater got one in the second. Dwight Seibler was the winning pitcher in the first game, Bobby Locke was the winner in the second.

The Indianapolis Indians, hottest team in the league with a seven-game winning streak, are gaining steadily on Atlanta's Southern Division leading Crackers. The Indians whipped the Crackers to pull within 3 1/2 games of the leaders. They trailed by six games a week ago.

Atlanta got eight hits off Taylor Phillips, who needed relief from Ed Drapcho in the eighth to put down a Cracker rally. Harry Fanok, recorded his fourth loss in six starts for the Crackers.

Purnal Goldy rapped his eighth and ninth home runs of the season for Syracuse. Goldy tied the score at 3-3 in the ninth inning with his four-batter, and rapped another in the 10th with two men on base to sew up the game for the Chiefs.

Sparky Anderson's homer in the bottom of the seventh gave Toronto a nightcap victory, but the Virginians surged to a 6-0 lead after three innings of the opener and Mel Stottlemyre coasted to his fourth victory in six starts.

Homers by Larry Brown, Buddy Barker, Walt Bond and Harry Chitt accounted for five of Jacksonville's six runs as the Suns snapped a six-game losing streak. The Suns scored three times on Frank Bork's first six pitches.

community's external tariffs in respect of other trading partners. It is very much in the German interest that this policy of lowering the European Economic Community's common external tariffs is continued. A period of adjustment and transition is, of course, necessary. In addition, the American trade and tariff policy must react appropriately to this policy. Q. Do you feel that future political development among the nations of the Western world will move toward some kind of super-national organization either in Europe or in the Atlantic community?

A. A European political and economic unification will come about, but along the way we must have patience. I should like to recall that a few weeks ago the parliaments (in Bonn and Paris) ratified the Franco-German treaty which is one of the most important prerequisites for European political cooperation. In other words, for Europe, we should proceed not dogmatically but pragmatically.

Podres Puts Dodgers Up in National

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Johnny Podres doesn't take many bows. Its dangerous. But there's no doubt the shrewd left-hander with the chronic back trouble was entitled to take just a little dip from the waist Monday night after his five-hit pitching carried Los Angeles to a 2-1 victory over Milwaukee and to within one-half game of the National League lead.

Plagued by back trouble since the start of his professional career, Podres has been both brilliant and baffling for the Dodgers since he joined the club in 1953. For the last three weeks, he had again been a problem, unable to win.

Then, against the Braves, the 31-year-old hurler completed another amazing flip-flop, turning in one of his strongest performances of the season. He struck out 12 and walked only two while recording his sixth complete game for a 5-6 record.

The decisive run came home on Wally Moon's pinch-hit double in the ninth inning off Braves starter Bob Sadowski, who wound up with a four-hitter and is 0-2 since he came to Milwaukee in the trade that sent Lew Burdette to St. Louis.

The Cardinals, meanwhile, lost to Houston 4-3 in 11 innings on Rusty Staub's key single. It was the Colts sixth victory in their last seven extra-inning games, all won by relief specialist Hal Woodeshick.

In other games, fourth-place Cincinnati showed its home run punch in edging third-place San Francisco 4-3 and Pittsburgh and Philadelphia split. The Pirates won the opener 2-1 before the Phillies took the nightcap 8-1. New York's Mets and the Chicago Cubs were idle.

The American League-leading New York Yankees knocked off Boston 7-5 and Kansas City defeated Baltimore 6-4 in the only games on the AL schedule. The Dodgers moved ahead 1-0 on Frank Howard's 12th homer in the second inning but Gene Oliver, who also came to the Braves in the Burdette trade, tied the score with a homer off Podres in the fourth. It stayed that way until the ninth when Maury Wills singled, stole second and eventually came around on Moons hit following an intentional walk to Jim Gilliam. Sadowski had retired 14 men in a row when Wills hit one up the middle.

Woodeshick, now 8-3, allowed the Cardinals to tie the score in the ninth on a pinch single by Charlie James, a ground out and Bill Whites single, but then checked the league-leaders until the Colts struck against Ron Taylor, 4-3. Ernie Fazio, like Staub a rookie, beat out an infield hit, moved to second on a sacrifice, took third on a wild pitch and trotted home on Staub's single. It was Houston's second straight victory over St. Louis after seven consecutive losses.

In other shifts, the Kansas City Athletics bought catcher Charley Lau from Baltimore and optioned outfielder Manny Jimenez to Portland of the PCL. The Orioles had brought up pitcher Ben Starrette and outfielder Fred Valentine from Rochester of the International League over the weekend.

MIDNIGHT RAIDER
By WILLIAM LEE CARTER

I suppose Midnight Raider is the only wild coon in existence who got his name from the people whose chickens he plundered. The victims were always sure it was he because he never failed to leave an identifying mark. Some bright piece of tinfoil or shiny bit of metal was always found in the vicinity of the killings.

The Raider broke all known records last year when he killed 72 hens at one farm. If you should try to count the hours that men have spent trying to catch him, you'd get a number like the population of China. He became so notorious that the farm association offered a $100 bounty for him.

Old Pop Waters and I were the ones who finally caught him. Folks had been saying that Old Pop had slowed and that his dogs weren't as good as the ones he formerly trained. Old Pop raised them and he refused to sell a dog until he met the prospective buyer and decided he was good enough for the dog.

Luther Peters, a poultry farmer, called Old Pop one night just after The Raider hit his chickens. Old Pop came past our house a little while after and whooped: "Come on, Boy, we'll get him tonight. I quickly joined him outside.

A short distance from Luther's, Old Pop let the dogs loose. He has only two now, Rebel Yell and Superchief. For the amount of noise they make, I think he named them right. The dogs began a circle to pick up the trail. Suddenly Rebel howled and started out on the track.

Old Pop lit his carbide light and took off in his galloping gait. Pop has one leg shorter than the other, but he can out-walk most younger men.

Rebel and Superchief were going down the creek at a full run because the trail was really hot.

Big Player Deal, Reds vs. Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — A multi-player deal between Cincinnati's pennant-contending Reds and the going-nowhere New York Mets highlighted a flurry of manpower shifts in the major leagues Monday.

The Reds, currently fourth in the tight National League race, acquired infielder Charlie Neal and catcher Sammy Taylor from the ninth-place Mets for the waiver price of $20,000 each. New York also is to get a player to be named later at the waiver price from Cincinnati—most likely good-hitting catcher Jesse Gonder.

To make some room on their roster, the Reds sent reserve second baseman Don Blasingame to Washington and the Senators, in turn, shipped pitcher Jim Coates to San Diego of the Pacific Coast League.

In other shifts, the Kansas City Athletics bought catcher Charley Lau from Baltimore and optioned outfielder Manny Jimenez to Portland of the PCL. The Orioles had brought up pitcher Ben Starrette and outfielder Fred Valentine from Rochester of the International League over the weekend.

I aimed my electric torch down the hole and there was an enormous pair of red eyes staring back at me. "Punch him out, Boy, Old Pop called up to me. I broke off a stick, poked and yelled like Old Pop had taught me. Suddenly Midnight Raider came shooting out of the hole like a fur-covered cannonball. He made an arching swan-dive toward the river. Crack! He hit that totally unexpected ice like a sack of flour and was knocked cold as a felled ox. Pop had figured the ice would work, where water wouldn't.

We tied him with a lead chain and Old Pop took him home and put him in a cage. People from all over the country came to look at the killer coon. Old Pop divided the reward with me. Now I'm a dog breeder, and Old Pop is my trainer.

the Yanks took another forward step in their drive for the American League pennant, almost singlehandedly wrecking the Boston Red Sox in a 7-5 Bomber victory.

Williams came on in relief in the fifth inning, stifled a big threat, blasted a decisive triple in the bottom of the inning and turned the Red Sox back the rest of the way with a superb job of pitching.

It was the first standout performance in some time by Williams, who was a front-line starter for the Yanks as the season opened, after being acquired from the Los Angeles Dodgers for first baseman Bill Skowron.

He made an auspicious debut for the Yanks, beating Baltimore 5-1 with a five-hitter in the first week of the campaign, but as the season progressed, Williams pitching slipped, and eventually he became a supernumerary in the bullpen.

He had last won on May 4 and had last appeared in a winning game on May 11—and carried a 2-3 record.

Williams squared that with a brilliant effort against the Red Sox. By winning, the Yankees made it four in a row over Boston and pushed 2½ games ahead of the runner-up Chicago White Sox.

In the only other AL game on the schedule, the Kansas City Athletics jumped out to a 5-0 lead against Baltimore and wound up with a 6-4 decision over the Orioles.

In the National League, Houston nipped first-place St. Louis 4-3 in 11 innings; the Dodgers climbed to within one-half game of the top, trimming Milwaukee 2-1; Cincinnati downed San Francisco 4-3; and Philadelphia gained a double-header split with Pittsburgh, trouncing the Pirates 8-1 after a 2-1 opening game loss.

Williams came on for Jim Bouton in the fifth with one run in, one out, two on, the score tied at 5-5—and got Dick Williams to hit into a double play. On the pitching side, he allowed only one hit in 4.2 innings—a double by Lu Clinton in the ninth. On the hitting side, he smacked a triple in the last of the fifth, that sent in the go-ahead run and then scored himself on Tony Kubek's single.

Kansas City rapped Oriole rookie Dave McNally for four runs in the first three innings, then went ahead 5-0 on Wayne Causeys homer off Ike Delock in the fourth.

Cleveland Is Palmer's 5th Tour Victory

By FRITZ HOWELL
 Associated Press Sports Writer

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Arnold Palmer, with his fifth tour victory and a bushel basket full of money, heads for England Wednesday in quest of his third straight British Open golf championship.

The 33-year-old Pennsylvania plutocrat carved out a five-birdie 67 Monday to defeat Tony Lema and Tommy Aaron by three strokes in their playoff for the Cleveland Open—a $110,000 fixture.

They had tied at 273, or 11 under par for the 72-hole jaunt over Beechmont Country Club 6,618-yard course.

The victory gave Palmer $22,000, boosted his three-week take to $54,000, ran his 1963 winnings to a record $85,545, and his 10-year total to an unapproached $430,323.

Lema, 29, San Leandro, Calif., pro, and Aaron, 26 from Gainesville Ga., picked up $8550 each. It was the biggest payday for Aaron, who has never won a pro tourney and moved him to eighth in the earnings list with $22,550.

All-Star Game Set July 9

By BOB HOOBING
 Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP)—Yankee yearling Jim Bouton or crafty Jim Bunning of Detroit will be the likely All-Star game starting pitcher for the American League and "The Monster"—Dick Radatz—rates probable finisher.

President Joe Cronin announced the complete American League squad Tuesday, including New York manager Ralph Houk's seven mound selections for the July 9 classic at Cleveland. Only Bunning and Ken McBride of Los Angeles among the hurlers have seen previous All-Star action.

Jim (Mudcat) Grant of Cleveland, Boston Red Sox rescuer Radatz plus southpaws Steve Barber of Baltimore and Juan Pizarro of Chicago complete the pitching choices.

"Hoak hasn't said a word to me about his starting pitcher but it will definitely be a right-hander, Cronin said after glancing at the right-handed-packed National League lineup. Only Cardinal first baseman Bill White and Giants catcher Ed Bailey hit from the left side.

One AL spokesman felt Bouton

Lema has the Memphis Open title and several high finishes to his credit for a fourth-place $60,963.

The playoff, the last four holes of which were televised nationally, was anti-climactic. Palmer, with three birdies, was three ahead of Lema and four ahead of Aaron at the end of six holes. With five to play, just before they moved into camera range, Palmer led Tony by five strokes and Tommy by seven.

Aaron, who birdied the last four to get into the playoff, birdied three of the same four to tie Lema.

would get the starting nod off his 10-3 record and 2.45 earned run average. Another leans toward Bunning who has only a 4-9 mark this season but is working on an eight-inning scoreless streak in All-Star play and has a 1.50 ERA for 12 frames.

The eight All-Star players voted into starting berths by their fellow athletes will open the game with the exception of injured New York centerfielder Mickey Mantle.

Albie Pearson of Los Angeles is in his place.

Otherwise its Detroit's Al Kaline and Las Leon Wagner in the outfield with Minnesota's Earl Battey behind the plate. The infield regulars are Yankee Joe Pepitone at first, old pro Nellie Fox of the White Sox at second, the Twins Zoilo Versalles at short and Boston's Frank Malzone at third.

Houk followed the second choices of the players except at first base where he picked Norm Siebern of Kansas City instead of Boston's Dick Stuart. He also added a third catcher, Don Lepore of Washington, and outfielders Harmon Killebrew of Minnesota and Tom Tresh of the Yankees.

Player-voted alternates whom Houk picked included outfielders Bob Allison of the Twins and Carl Yastrzemski of the Red Sox plus catcher Elston Howard of the Yankees. The infielders: 2b Bobby Richardson, New York; SS Luis Aparicio and 3b Brooks Robinson, Baltimore.

Something To Think About By The Oakcrest Funeral Home & Burial Association

Many times we have been asked: "Why can't we increase our Burial Protection?" Now, this can be done. In view of the many following reasons, we now have a new Cash Burial Plan for the entire family, which is additional protection to your present Burial Policy.

Death is tragic enough in itself, but when all the unexpected expenses that go hand-in-hand with it are added to sorrow and grief, the total burden that must be faced by those left behind, it is something to think about.

Some families do have money set aside for just such emergencies. Most families, unfortunately, do not. Death — so frequent an occurrence in these modern times, almost always finds us totally unprepared.

On the other hand, a long lingering illness, drains the family savings slowly, but surely. Cost of medicines, doctor bills, perhaps a hospital bill—these are the items that pile up on top of the inescapable expenses that must be met.

To be burdened with these inevitable expenses is so unnecessary. Our new cash policy will give each member of the family up to $1,000.00 in additional protection. This added protection may be used for the above mentioned expenses, or you may choose to use your cash policy for a number of other reasons, such as cemetery lots, monuments, flowers, burial vault or funeral expenses.

Remember; this cash policy is available to everyone, and is good anywhere, regardless of your present insurance program.

We earnestly urge you to think about the above facts, and take advantage of this new cash protection.
